MONDAY MORNING, - - - MARCH 30, 1868.

The Election Next Saturday, Less than a week remains before the elec-ion. We trust the Democracy of Louisvill duty and their whole duty on that day. No Democrat should fail to vote, and to vote the straight ticket. Our candidates are all worth gentlemen, well qualified for the respectiv positions to which they are named, and, what is not to be lost sight of, they are the duly accredited nominees of the Democratic party.

Let no one imagine he can support the soled independent candidates and still b ue to the Democratic party. The thing is appossible. There is but one Democratic ticket, and he who votes against it will ther systray himself on the side of the enemies point committees whose duty it shall be to popular enters and salesmen in the city of the party. Men are to be judged rather see that the vote of the party is brought out. If teverybody, and makes his clothers to The Indianapolis Journal denies that Ben. Wade has indicated whom he intends to in make his Cabinet officers, and says "if the COURIER was half as anxious to preserve the reason for this, as avowed by one of their leaders at the convention held on Wednesday night, is that they think they can thereby "more effectually damage the Demogratic party" than by running a regular Rad-Scal ticket. The independent candidates may, therefore, be regarded as to a certain extent the candidates of the Radical party. Those who support them will, whether they intend or not, be assisting the Radicals in their effort to break down or impair the organization reason for this, as avowed by one of or not, be assisting the organization and effectiveness of our party. Let every be defectiveness of our party. Let every well either for the Radical Senate or the Radical party. Once poseesed of a majority sufficient to pass any bill ver the President's veto, he advocated the xercise of that power by the Radicals in Concess, not for the purpose of securing he perpetual ascendency of the party alone. To the Editor of the Louisville Courser:

1 think the discovery of the American ent was the discovery of the "New Wo in a far larger sense than once meant. It also satisfied that the "mantiest destiny" this great republic of ours includes the m the perpetual ascendency of the party along it for the gratification of a feeling of batre nd revenge against the South, and for the preshold of one of those grand and riching of his political friends. Therefor was that Thad, Stevens would have ha afiscation go hand in hand with received an eighteen hundred years have clap uction. But, more wary than he, his con manity received that blessed hop es saw, the impolicy of such a proceedi least until after the temper and forbeau ce of the people had been fully tested or her points, and hence declined to support which has so long sustained it and shaped its intellectual and moral life. I believe this divine gift has completed the purpose of its be-stowal, and is being succeeded by a new revtion, which is to give birth to an origina Nothing is more apparent than that motive and immensely superior civilization. When we remember the moral sode which Chris-Stevens' confiscation project long sind hity presented was once new and strange, should not refuse to believe in the new rabip which Radicallem announces, be

Grant and Butler,

[G. A.T., in Cleveland Leader.]

It is curious to see the way Grant and Butler fight shy of each other. Gen Grant is reported never to bave written the paragraph of his report which reported Butler's army "bottled up and corked" between two rivers—the same being ascribed to the united intellects of staff officers Rawlins and Badeau. But it was a popular epigram, and Grant saw no reason to regret it for a while. At last, when Butler, indominable over all things, returned to Congress again, and Grant looned up as a candidate for the Presidency, the latter began to comprehend that what s-cened to be a smart thing in the moment of commission was a long thing in the influence and issue, Still more is this apparent now, when Butler has become a manager of the impeachment, and altoge-her the most formidable man as a political opponent within the Republican party. Grant is known to heartly regret, as a most injudicious and irrevocable thing, the cubbing he gave Butler. He and Butler speak to each other, and Grant never refuses any request that Butler any make; but the old bald sawivel is a long thater. His military pride will not allow and to be reconciled. Butler's genius and audacity are such that sometimes I wonder whether frant is not in turn "bottled and corked" himself, so constantly does he feel the eye of his enemy upon him. The moral to all this is: "Economize your nicknames. Look out when you make laughter of a man, that he is a laughing fellow. And, above all, never say 'Go up, thou bald head!"

Vegetation in the Moon. Vegetation in the Moon.

It was for a long time the common conclusion among stronomers that the moon was without any atmosphere, and destitute of water, and that, consequently, neither animal or vegetable life could be supported on its surface. But several eminent modern astronomers have maintained that the moon has an atmosphere, though of a very limited to the country of the c soveral eminent modern astronomers have maintained that the moon has an atmosphere, though of a very limited extent. And quite recently Mr. Schawbe, a German astronomical professor, thinks he has discovered signs of vegetation on the surface of our satellite, it is well known that there are ceriain dark lines or scratches, as they appear, extending across the slopes of the highest mountains in the moon. These have been variously explained, some regarding them as dried-up streams; others as the channels left by torrents of lava; others as having some other origin. Prof. Schawbe claimed to have discovered in these lines a greenish color, which appears at certain seasons, lasts a few months, and then disappears. He therefore regards those lines as belts of vegetation. If his observations should be decisively confirmed by those of other astronomers, it will settle the question that the moon has both air and water, and will therefore remove any presumption against the existence of animal life on its surface.

SINGULAR WILL—Miss Louisa Simpson, a wealthy spinster of Pittsburg, died recently, leaving many bequests to her old servants and acquaintances. Some of them are quite singular, and it is understood that the will is to be contested. Among the provisions are the bequeathing to a Mrs. Grunsinger her cow Doggie, as follows, "with the express understanding that she is to take good care of my pet dogs. I also wish her to draw fifty cents per week to furnish meat for the dogs—my executors to set aside so much for their benefit." A number of household articles are then bequeathed to Mrs. Grunsinger and Hetty Jackson. She then directs that her horse "Rocket" be shot, "as he is old, and cannot do hard work. It is more mercial to be killed than badly treated. He has fall to be killed than badly treated. He has fall to be killed than badly treated. He has always been a pet, never requiring a whip or always been a pet, never requiring a whip or spur. I would cheerfull give any amount to have him taken care of, but know too well how often an old friend is left to perish in the cold. Jenny can be sold to some of those men who want blooded marcs, but she is to have a kind master." To "Blind Tom" is Burton she gives $100 a year as long as he may live, to keep him from suffering.
